

1. that logic ignores that the system itself was established to normalize control over minority and impoverished populations and preserves the bureaucracy
2. increases the scope of the criminal justice system through their reform and thus normalizes policing and the system's legal empowerment and oppressive control
3. Ending qualified immunity fails to actualize real reductions in police violence and provides legitimacy to the system of policing it criticizes—must begin from the premise that the police are an outdated institution which requires abolition before real transformations can be made
4. Morality Link - moralizing appeals to human decency are historically revisionist—positing that something went wrong – but that revisionism reifies the pull of racial liberalism by reaffirming the ability to solve its violence through existing measures
5. Deterrent link – justifies using the criminal Justice system as something that can be used to deter violence – that is the same logic that created the prison system and justifies the continual use of it
6. Policing Link - The police, since their inception, have been an institution created for the sole purpose of preserving social and economic hierarchy. Only through the complete eradication of them can we hope to achieve true equality.
